Show HN: A language model that lives in a boot sector

HackerNews 60% HN 107

All the ideas came from the boot sector demo scene where people had been writing chess and BASIC games in 512 bytes, even a C compiler. I wondered what one can do using a neural network instead of a program and generating boot logs for non-existent hardware was something fun to...

Show HN: Uncracked City, detective game where you question LLM suspects that lie

HackerNews 50% HN 74

To give you some context on the project. I'm a solo founder and I use AI heavily in my work. The idea came from wanting players to discover cities. Each city has its own history, so every case is set in a real city with real public places. The crime and the people are on other...
